

Creeping Thistle

This perennial is also known as a Canadian thistle and considered a weed, often crowding out other native species causing significant crop loss. This plant can grow up to 2 meters tall and has a purple spiny bloom. The leaves are a soft green, with a spear-like shape with barbs on them. It flowers from late June to late in the fall.